Communication Plan Template and Example
SITUATION ANALYSIS
Provide background on the situation and events driving the need to communicate.

COMMUNICATION OBJECTIVES
Identify your desired outcomes. To the extent possible, make your objectives SMART (specific, measureable, attainable, relevant and time-bound)

KEY MESSAGES
Summarize the themes and messages you intend to convey. Describe what the themes and messages mean for stakeholders.

OPPORTUNITIES AND CHALLENGES
What will generate a positive response? What is likely to cause resistance?

APPROACH
Explain your overall strategy for communicating the messages. How will the messages be conveyed? What guiding principles will you follow?
List the specific communication tactics to be employed. Try to think in terms of phases and steps.

SITUATION ANALYSIS
XYZ Company has been losing ground to competitors for the past five years. To turn the business around, the company must:
• Reduce operating expenses.
• Nurture and reward innovation.
• Enhance product quality.

To achieve these goals, XYZ is implementing a new strategic plan. To ensure employee actions and rewards are aligned to the plan’s objectives, the company is introducing a new incentive program.

COMMUNICATION OBJECTIVES
1. Employees are aware of what’s changing, the rationale and what it means for them:
   • 80% of employees believe the information they received explained the changes thoroughly.
   • 80% of employees believe they understand what the changes mean for them personally.
   • 90% of managers believe they know what to do by when.

2. Employees stay focused on customers throughout the transition:
   • Customer satisfaction scores remain at current level or better.
   • Calls to HR call center are less than five percent above normal.
   • Manager and employee feedback suggests the changes produced minimal noise and distraction across business units.

OPPORTUNITIES AND CHALLENGES
Positive messages to convey:
• Tighter link between pay and performance
• Less ambiguity for managers assessing employee results
• Chance for top performers to earn more

Factors likely to produce resistance to change:
• Employees must learn new HR processes.
• Employees have more pay at risk.
• Managers need to have tough discussions with low performers.

KEY MESSAGES
Rewards – Employees will have new opportunities for rewards.
• Tighter link between pay and performance
• Better reward opportunities for top performers

Clarity – A consistent pay approach will be used companywide.
• Managers have easier time measuring employee contribution
• Common benchmarks used to measure results

APPROACH
Gain active support from managers.
• Provide tools that help managers explain the new incentive program.
• Prepare managers to hold difficult discussions with low performers.

Provide clear instructions.
• Keep communications simple, straightforward and direct.
• Help employees understand the new program.

Listen and respond to feedback.
• Capture ongoing feedback from managers and employees.
• Maintain flexibility and respond quickly to communication needs as they arise.
